Videos of Women in Supply Chain

As part of the Pathways program at Fisher, the following short videos have been developed to illustrate aspects of a career in supply chain management. Women at different stages of their careers were interviewed regarding challenges and opportunities they have experienced in their work. Please watch and share with others who might be interested.

Visit with Wendy’s Quality Supply Chain Co-Op (QSCC)

The group visited QSCC, which is the independent purchasing cooperative for the Wendy’s® system. QSCC boasts 253 members (franchisors with one or more restaurants) which represent over 5,700 Wendy’s restaurants across the United States. QSCC negotiates purchasing, manages distribution and logistics and procures equipment and services. Additionally, QSCC partners with the brand for Limited Time Offers (LTOs). The Jalapeno Fresco Spicy Chicken sandwich and Ghost Pepper Fries were offered for 8 weeks in 2016 and required careful planning to ensure a consistent supply of the Ghost Peppers which are grown in India. In total, QSCC manages over 1,200 items/services, 17,000 deliveries per week, more than 30 distributors and over 400 vendors. This is accomplished with approximately 80 professionals led by John Inwright, President.

One of the Pathways scholars from 2016-17 did an internship in HR with QSCC last summer and two more from that class will be interning over the summer – thank you QSCC! Finally, to illustrate the breadth of products and supply chains that they deal with, a video on the lettuce supply chain was shown. Think lettuce is a straightforward product? There’s more to it than you might think. Watch the video to find out more:
